2 Summer Staffers Enjoy Library Work

When residents borrow a book at the "Mountainside Public Library" this summer, they can make their selection with help from two attractive college cords.

Judith Dorothy Melo, of 263 Pembroke rd., and Cherry Tom of 961 Mountain ave. are spending the summer helping at the "enormous" book-and-card catalog, returning and shelving books, keeping records and performing the myriad other chores involved in library routine.

Mrs. Emily Hoffarth, librarian, cannot say enough in praise of the two girls. "They are both honor students," she points out, "and they work here outstandingly."

Cherry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ping Tom. Her grandfather was the first proprietor of the Chi-Am Chinese, and her father now supervises the operation, including two brothers, Peter, 16, and Victor, 14, both students at Governor Livingston Regional High School.

Cherry was graduated from Governor Livingston this June and will study chemistry in the fall at Jackson College of Tufts University in Medford, Mass., where she was awarded a scholarship.

The sixth and final report which will contain recommendations, is due in about two weeks, according to Albert Hartung, chairman of the Planning Board. Included in five reports already completed, are statistics prepared by a Smith firm that predict a profit in tax income from multiple-unit dwellings in the borough. The firm has been contracted to analyze the borough's present and future development prior to adoption of a Master Plan by the Planning Board.

The recommendation will be made at a meeting that will be held in a week or so upon invitation of Attorney General Arthur Sills in response to resolutions proposing the trucks-keep-right policy and a plan to divert World's Fair traffic from the highway that were sent to Gov. Hughes.

Accompanying Wester will be Henry S. Papp, police commissioner of North Plainfield; George G. Johnston, public safety commissioner of Scotch Plains; and C. Brice de Ganay, police commissioner of Plainfield. They were appointed by Wester at a special meeting of the safety council last night.

Wester said he has received some 70 letters from citizens in the last two months urging adoption of a trucks-keep-right policy on the highway.

The plan for diverting World's Fair traffic, which would include erecting road markers for Pennsylvania traffic that would urge the use of the Garden State Parkway and New Jersey Turnpike instead of Rt. 22, this would provide the double benefit of relieving additional congestion on 22 and providing additional revenue from the state.

ECHO PROFILE - Mrs. Emily Hoffarth

MRS. EMILY HOFFARTH

Just as a French housewife is able to take a handful of inexpensive ingredients and prepare from them the cuisine for which she is world-famous, Mrs. Emily Hoffarth, Mountainside librarian, has the ability to take whatever ingredients life gives her and turn them into a recipe for success.

Take her work with the library, for example. When she started the library in 1946, the faculty had 1,256 books, 228 members and an annual circulation of 5,885. By last year the number of books had reached 14,000, membership 2,033, and the annual circulation figure had soared to 80,958.

She has taken three basement rooms in the Echobrook school — a former classroom, a shop, and a lunchroom, considered by the state as substandard for use by children, meagre ingredients indeed for any thing as lofty in its conception as a library.

To these she has added the warmth of her own personality, the very best advice she could obtain on library procedure and book selection, her own love of books, a cooperative staff, and a determination to do the very best she could for Mountainside with what was given to her.

These she has turned into a library which is, after all, an institution of inestimable values. (A feature on library services will follow in a future issue of the Echo.)

MRS. HOFFARTH and her husband Elmer, who is Mountainside's borough clerk, live at 217 Evergreen ct. They moved here 24 years ago when the borough was a community of 1,000 people.

Programmed Reading Books Provide Summer Experiment

By MARIAN BROWN

Seven-year-old children in Mrs. Eliza Roblin's class at Seaside School have been learning to read through a new method. The seven experimenters are in increments of 12 hours sent to the school on a trial basis. "We had to find the right teacher to teach the program," Mrs. Roblin said. "The teacher we found is a question mark."

Programmed reading books are designed to teach children how to read. The books are arranged in a sequence of frames. Each frame contains a problem or question which the answer is hidden in the frame preceding it. Once a child has found an answer in one book, he should be able to repeat it throughout all the books sent to the school on a trial basis. "We had to find the right teacher to teach the program," Mrs. Roblin said. "The teacher we found is a question mark."

The project is aimed to be the borough's first return to the money in the interest-free government loan as the work progresses.

ECHO PROFILE

(Continued from Page 1) She is also a charter member of the Mountainside Woman's Club. They have two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Dittmer of Glen Rock and Ruth, although library work now Mrs. Janet Schramm of Con- keeps her too busy for organiza- tions. And she is a former member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Westfield.

Mrs. Hoffarth was born in Yonkers, New York, in 1906, the oldest of three children. At Yonkers High School's strong ability in athletics came to the front, and she became active in tennis and track events. Her abilities developed rapidly, so that shortly after graduation from high school she had become mixed doubles tennis champion of Westchester County. Her mother saved the medals she won for hurdle and relay races in high school.

Even after she was married as a member of an industrial league, she won first place and her team placed third in a meet at Erie, Pa. Athletes is something she and her husband enjoy together, she said, explaining that they both like basketball and baseball.

After graduation from high school she abandoned hopes for a college education and went to work in Yonkers to help her mother, because her father had died. She later assumed the care of her brother, 10, and sister, 5, when her mother also died.

At her job she performed a wide variety of chores. "I was a slavey," she said smiling. "I know, like out of Dickens." She later had a job with Paramount Movie Corporation in New York City in which she computed popularity ratings of stars and films. It was very interesting, she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffarth both grew up in Yonkers, and they remained to live there after their marriage in 1928 until they moved to Mountainside.

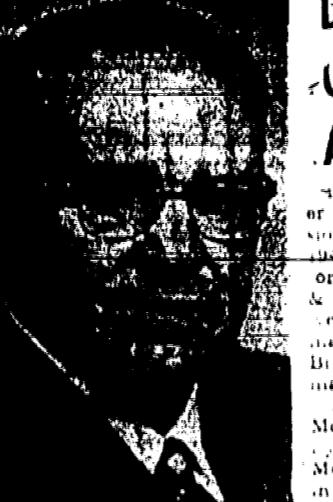

Hoffarth worked for General Motors in Linden before being named borough clerk close to the half century mark.

IN MOUNTAINSIDE Mrs. Hoffarth quickly became active in community activities. With two daughters and a natural zest for activity, Girl Scouting was inevitable, and she served as a leader for seven years, taking the hardest age-group of all—the eighth-graders. Asked if she taught them to play tennis, she said "she worked mostly with handicrafts and taught that subject to other Girl Scout leaders in what was then the Westfield Council."

"I liked outdoor activity," she said, explaining that her troop met at the Echobrook School and hiked to a cabin at Lake Surprise. They earned all kinds of outdoor skills, even to turning a tin can into an outdoor burner for cooking. Mrs. Hoffarth also worked at a Girl Scout day camp, which was held for two weeks each summer.

With children in school the PTA was another inevitable, and she served as secretary and treasurer of this organization. She still serves the Echobrook School, but houses built in 1962 and in Benchwood this year have placed these two schools outside her jurisdiction. Mrs. Hoffarth plans to retire in three years. By then the library may have a new aspect and an expanded future. But the people who have lived in the borough during the more than two decades Mrs. Hoffarth will have served the library will remember the groundwork that was laid and the woman who was a leader in the community.

With children in school the PTA was another inevitable, and she served as secretary and treasurer of this organization.

Rescue Squad Needs More Day Workers

Prospective members of the Mountainside Rescue Squad are urged by Ronnie Mays, president, to attend one of its meetings, held at 8 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month, or one of its drills, held on third Wednesdays, at the Rescue Squad building on Route 22 adjacent to Echobrook School.

The recruitment drive is still going strong, he said as members are urgently needed for duty during daytime hours. Industrial firms have been contacted for members who would be available for daytime calls, but housewives are also needed at this time, Mays said.

Shakespeare In The County Parks A Delight To Youngsters, Adults Alike

BY BRI SMITH

"Some are born great, some acquire greatness. And some have greatness thrust upon them." So ended the engrossing cast of the R. J. Greek Company of Elizabeth and Plainfield this past weekend to an appreciative audience of the people of Union, Cedar Brook Park, Plainfield, Union County residents more than a quarter of whom composed of parents and children. Other audience members, who were exposed to the original play at one of the three Shakespeare Festivals held in the parks, feature the names of cast of the Bay Area Shakespeare Company and the spectators in the surrounding grandstand seats.

An unusually fine group of people clamped to and filling resting membrane seats to an available audience.

Both, Friday and Saturday night audiences enjoyed hard backless seats, stiff necks reckless merriment who spared a recent park site and other incident, perched amongst trees, to gape at actors, to gape at
and others enacted
as Cairns Clarke, John Crawford, John McBride,
Steve Rea, Argie, C.
Legg, Alan Neary, Sallie Singer, Barbara Steele, Helen Charles, Louisa, Ann R. man and Jim Stoen.

Under a large spreading oak, a large and the grandstand
at a distance.

The actors stepped off the stage and into the audience and the spectators enjoyed the play.

Absorbing As The Convention On TV -- 'White House' With Helen Hayes

By WILLIAM H. BRUCKER

The convention of the American Association of University Women, which opened yesterday at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City, has been described as "the White House." Helen Hayes and a committee of women from the area are among the 1,000 delegates attending the meeting.

The association, founded in 1888, is a nonpartisan organization of women who work for the improvement of education, health, and welfare, and for the promotion of international understanding.

FASHION'S IDE WITH Tercentenary. One of the "Fashions of Yesterday's Year," a window display set up in Hahne and Co., Westfield, in honor of the state's Tercentenary year, is admired by Mrs. Elka Gischmann of Roselle Park. The mannequin wears an outfit worn by Mrs. August Hahne, daughter-in-law of the store's founder, back in the 1890's. The period fashions will be on display in the North Ave. window through July 17.
